Will and Last Testament: Distributes property and assets according to your wishes. It also appoints a representative or administrator to handle your estate after you pass. Having a Will can help avoid family disputes and conflicts.

Durable Power of Attorney: Allows you to appoint a person to make certain decisions on your behalf.

Cremation Instructions: Allows you to appoint a person to carry out your wishes for cremation and disposition of ashes.

Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care: Allows you to appoint a person to make certain health care decisions.

Health Care Directive: Provides instructions and makes known your desire for artificially prolonged circumstances.

Uniform Donor Pledge: Provides specific instructions for any anatomical gifts you may wish to make.

Digital Estate Plan: Helps organize and index your digital property and assets.

Community Property Agreement: Agreement between married couples for outlining the disposition of community property upon one spouse's passing.

*Revocable Living Trusts are separate from the Comprehensive Estate Plan because not everyone needs one. Call today for a consultation to determine whether having one is beneficial for you and your loved ones.
